January 2010 - The following is an excerpt from the January 2010 INSIIDE Track that discusses the convergence of Earth Disturbance Cycles that occur in January & July 2010.

These cycles have a stronger influence on California & Japan but historically impact North America and much of Eastern Asia.

More comprehensive analysis, context and expectations for the coming years can be found in related publications like The 17-Year Cycle Reports.

As is often emphasized - which is critical to keep in mind when reading this information - these cycles are analyzed and discussed as another example of the application of cycle analysis. They are not addressed to sensationalize possible events or to minimize the impact of those events...

Outlook 2010 - 2011...

A Decennial Deja Vu?

01-05-10 - In some ways, expectations for 2010 - 2011 are similar to those for 2000 - 2001.

10 years ago, a great deal of anxiety greeted the onset of 2000 (Y2K). Stock market cycles - discussed in late-1999 - were projecting an early-2000 peak (see Bubble of the Decade discussions from 1999) and the onset of a major bear market.

However, War Cycles - and other geopolitical cycles - were pointing to 2001 as the most dangerous. As emphasized many times and in many ways:

“All my long-term cycles still point to the year 2001 as being more significant than 2000...events in 2000 could pale by comparison to what will occur in 2001.”

[Nov. 1999 INSIIDE Track]

The same could be said about 2011 as compared to 2010.

I expect some dramatic events in 2010.

I expect the onset of a new bear market in Stock Indices in 2010. But, I think the real trouble is likely to wait until 2011. And, I think the next bear market will not become obvious and/or accelerate lower until 2011. And, even the collapse of the Decade Bubbles could wait until 2011...

...And, the coming years could also see some undermining of geophysical stability...

Earth Disturbance Cycles

Nov. '09 fulfilled South/Central American earthquake and volcano cycles (5.6 in Argentina, 6.5 in Chile, 5.8 in Bolivia, 6.1 in Argentina - 3 of which struck in a 24-hour period - a 5.7 in Argentina, 5.9 in El Salvador and a 5.5 in Venezuela, all while the Galeros Volcano in Columbia began erupting) and looked ahead to May 2010 & November 2010, when these geometric cycles again converge.

In the interim, we are approaching the mid-January period in which - along with its 180-degree partner in mid-July - dozens of earthquakes have struck Japan and the U.S. (West Coast).

Overall, this cycle impacts a wider swath of the 'Ring of Fire' - a seismically-active 'ring' that encompasses the west coast of North America, up through Alaska & Russia and then down the east coast of Asia.

The accompanying table highlights a few of the more salient earth events that have taken place during these two, narrow time periods over the past 17 years.

The most consistent dates - within this 'mid-January' time period - are precisely at mid-month: January 15th, 16th & 17th.

Looking at just those three dates, we see major earthquakes in 1993 (CA & Japan), 1994 (powerful & costly Northridge, CA quake), 1995 (devastating Kobe, Japan quake), 1997 (Japan, Indonesia quakes & Indonesia volcano eruption) and 2001 (Indonesian quakes).

More recently, major earthquakes struck on January 16, 2005, January 13, 2007 & January 15, 2009. Will mid-January 2010 see anything similar?

Mid-January 2010 & mid-July 2010 are 17-Year Cycles from major (7.5 & 7.8) earthquakes in Northern Japan in 1993... which acted as geometric precursors - along with a similar N. Japanese quake in July 1994 - to the devastation of January 1995 in Kobe, Japan. Could either of these time frames see similar disturbances in Japan?

Here again, 2010 could/should see some major activity but 2011 is expected to overshadow whatever occurs in 2010.

Even these mid-January quakes seem to occur on more of a 2-year interval (1993, 1995, 1997, 2001, 2005, 2007 & 2009)... reinforcing the focus on January 2011.

The period from very-late-2010 into very-early 2012 (Dec. 28th 2010 - Jan. 17, 2012) represents a 7-year cycle from the massive earthquake and tsunami of Dec. 2004 and a 17-Year Cycle from the destructive California & Japan earthquakes of Jan. 1994 - Jan. 1995 (in addition to all the other Earth Disturbance Cycles that have been enumerated in the past).

Mid-2011 is also the next in a 10-Year series of major volcanic eruptions that includes the mid-1991 eruptions of Pinatubo, Unzen & Hudson as well as the mid-2001 eruptions of Etna & Mayon.

As I explained in 2007 - when describing the 17-Year Cycle that was projecting a stock market crash - this Cycle is closely linked to the magnetic swings in the core of the earth and has pinpointed a recurring series of earthquake swarms over the past 200 years.

Bubble of the Decade - Part II

Gold & the Yen have powerfully validated expectations for December 2009 peaks, with both spiking briefly above their 6-12 month targets and then immediately turning down.

While I do not believe this is the final peak in either (the Yen already has a peak from 1995 and Gold is expected to move higher in 2011 - 2013), they have fulfilled the potential for 3-6 month and potentially 6-12 month peaks.

Short-term Interest Rate futures are still the prime candidate but need to do more work to signal a top. IT

2 Close Reversal™ – A new high above the previous day's/week's high & subsequent close below both of the 2 previous closes... or vice-versa (new low & close above both of the 2 previous closes).

MAC, AMAC & MARC™ – Moving Average Channel calculations based on highs or lows of specified time period.
